

Matt Havens

Introduction

Our next speaker once climbed Mt. Everest, rode a camel in the Sahara, won the Heisman Trophy, and was even elected into the board of his Homeowners Association. He's been praised in countless magazines, including being voted by Home and Garden Magazine as "America's Next Big Thing" in 2001. Sadly, the issue was never published

He's worked with Fortune 100 companies all across America, determined to single-handedly kill email and replace all communication with hashtags.

Now he's turned his focus to helping others - determined to helping you succeed in part by telling you how to do things really, really badly - because as he likes to say, boring isn't a business requirement. He is the most entertaining and most unorthodox speaker you haven't seen yet.

Ladies and gentlemen, please help me welcome Matt Havens.
